STAGE INTRO

Today I would like to introduce our speaker and tell you something that is extremely important about him. Well, our speaker is very, very, VERY BALD!

Justin Jones-Fosu is a husband, daddy, social entrepreneur, author, and speaker (in that order) who does the laundry and other household “projects.” He also happens to speak 60-70 times a year for Corporations, Associations, and Educational Institutions in the US. He is the founder and CEO of Work. Meaningful. which is a company that is on a mission to help people bring meaning to their work every day while helping leaders of organizations create engaged and meaningful workplaces.

Justin’s background is in Human Resources Development and he obtained his MBA specializing in Leadership and Organizational Change. He has gained valuable leadership experience with three Fortune 500 companies. Justin was named as one of EBONY Magazines “Top 30 Young Leaders on the Rise”. He is the author of three books and recently launched Your WHY Matters NOW: How Some Achieve More and Others Don’t.

If you only remember a few things about Justin, it’s that he is a husband and loves being a daddy to two high-energy children. He believes that these are more important than any accomplishments, recognition, or accolades! So...Get ready for this high-energy presentation where you will be educated, entertained, inspired, but most importantly challenged to take ACTION!

Please give a warm welcome to the bald laundry washer himself, Mr. Justin Jones-Fosu.
